

Save on shipping

When you set out to build your new barebone kit you can shop around on just about every part online and find a great price for each item. But by the time you add shipping and sales tax (where applicable) you will find it better to buy all of your parts from one location.

Another great solution is to buy a barebone kit where the computer company has already put together a bunch of parts: Case, Power Supply, Motherboard, CPU, Memory etc. Read carefully to be sure which parts you need to add and you will soon have a super fast new PC.